The Art of Care

Continuing Education Hours

10:00 AM — 12:00 PM

Donn Kropp will present an exciting and inspiring course on the art of providing high-quality care. This course will take an in-depth look into the concept of “care” and its implications on health and well-being. Participants will gain insight into how understanding and practicing the art of care can enable an individual to effectively maintain and promote health. Participants will be challenged and inspired to grow in their respective areas of employment so they can help others lead a healthy and happy life.

Self Care: Taking Care of You

Continuing Education Hours

1:00 PM — 3:00 PM

Donn Kropp and Andy Flaherty will present a course of self care. This course will provide a detailed exploration of the use of “self care” in the “helping professions.” Participants will gain insight on how to care for themselves as a “carer” of others and will be instructed on how to recognize the signs of compassion fatigue and burn-out. Participants will also be taught strategies for developing personal resilience to enable themselves to more effectively handle cases, situations, and environments that could lead to secondary trauma in the life of a caregiver.

PRESENTERS

DONN KROPP, RN, BSN

Donn has over ten years of ER/Trauma and medical consulting and training experience. He aims to train and equip those in the health and human services field to provide high-quality care. Donn recently received the 2013 REAL Award for his international and domestic work in the healthcare field and was recognized by President Bill Clinton for his efforts.

ANDY FLAHERTY, MSW

Andy is a seasoned social worker, having worked in multiple social work fields for the past eight years. As an emerging leader in the field, Andy enjoys equipping and helping professionals take better care of their own needs, avoid burn-out, and develop healthy patterns that will enable them to deal with the rigors of working in such a demanding field.
